

If you've done your best work on your project, it's disappointing not to get the rating you were expecting. Just remember – the judge's opinion is simply one person's opinion. A different judge might have given you a different placing. But even if you don't agree with the judge, it's worth paying attention to what he or she has to say about your project. You could get some great ideas for how to do even better next time.

Here are some tips about feedback:

- Pay attention to what the judge liked instead of getting upset about what he or she didn't like. Even if there were some negative comments, there were probably just as many positive ones!
- Don't be nervous about face-to-face judging. The judge is truly interested in youth, otherwise he or she wouldn't be there. Relax so you can be your friendly, natural self when the judge meets with you. And if you don't understand something he or she says, be sure to say so.
- Think about how you can use the judge's feedback. What can you do differently if you intend to keep working on this kind of project? What will you want to do the same way?

What if you were the judge? What kind of rating would you give your project if you were judging it? Be honest!

Your outlook matters. Being able to have fun and learn how to do something worthwhile is just as important as whatever the judge thought about your work.

Be A Blue Ribbon Youth

It is important to recognize that judging is a personal opinion and that evaluation will vary among judges. Graciously accepting constructive criticism of one's work is a life skill. Let's strive to recognize that 4-H YOUTH are more important than 4-H projects.
